The main objectives of this course are:

Harmonious development of personality through acquaintance with cultural heritage

Enhancing self-regulation and attention - children become more focused and obedient

Alternatives to gadgets: nurturing creativity and imagination

Fostering independence, empathy, leadership qualities

Uncovering and strengthening individual abilities, including musical and creative talents

Example of Lesson 1

We get acquainted with the group and begin to talk about our first topic - Ludwig van Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. This famous piano sonata becomes a magical nighttime performance set in a spring meadow at night. All thanks to amazing book, created by the artist Doris Eisenburger. We'll see a stunning performance by Luigi the pianist beetle, a dance by elf butterflies, a minuet by field insects, accompanied by the enchanting sounds of Beethoven's music.

What exactly do we do?

We follow the plot of a book, listen to musical excerpts and watch video clips from the concerts.

And that's it?!

We will... play music games that will allow us to show what we already know and learn a lot of new things.

create our own stories with unique heroes and incredible adventures.

try on our favourite roles, feel like actors, dancers, singers on stage, or maybe musicians and conductors (Why not?!).

brainstorm and discuss the behavior and actions of the main characters, try to find our own solution to the problem the characters have encountered, and draw the right conclusions from the story.

talk a lot about music, musical instruments, musicians and watch a lot of interesting pictures and videos.

make crafts inspired by the musical pieces we explore in class. Based on the experience from previous years, children really enjoy this activity. This year, crafting will become a full part of our lessons, with all materials provided by the teacher.

Of course not!
